An ethical approach to business

The ICL believe that all trading partners must have an ethical approach to business, and demonstrate a commitment to local, national and international projects.

UAP are different to many companies. They have a firm belief that they should give back where possible. In the last 12 months UAP have embarked on 3 major social projects. The first is the protection against developers of 3 reservoirs in our home town of Bury. The next is a 3 year re-forestation project in Thailand where we are funding the planting of 56,000 trees and the re-introduction of baboons, and other indigenous wildlife back into the forest, which has been devastated by years of tree cutting.

Their third and most emotive project involves the building of 5 community schools in Nepal, one of the poorest countries in the world. Children in the 5 school areas no longer have to leave home at 6.00am in the morning to walk 4 hours to reach school before doing 7 hours work and then walking another 4 hours home. Up to 1,000 children a year will be taught in the UAP Community Schools.

To undertake this task UAP teamed up with local charity DCWC-Nepal who have been building schools in Nepal for several years. The first school was opened in May 2007 and we were proud to have Sean Wilson (best known as Martin Platt from Coronation Street) opening the school on our behalf.

Carbon Footprints in Nepal

This little foot used to walk up to 8 hard hours every day just to go to school. But not anymore.

Thanks to people like you, UAP have been able to build 2 Community schools in remote parts of Nepal during 2007.

So it now takes this little foot (and a 1000 more like it) just 15 easy minutes. Maybe when you look at your ICL installed product you will remember this foot because this foot will always remember you.

So on behalf of 1000 little feet in Nepal. Thank you.

UAP will continue to offer high quality products at sensible prices and they will continue their work of giving back to the community, and to the world at large.

Stop hands through your letterbox... fit a Security Restrictor

Burglars often use the hole through letterboxes to grab car keys or house keys from the inside of your property. UAP Letterboxes are designed to make this difficult. But if you do not have a UAP Letterbox or want total security then fit a UAP Security Restrictor. These restrictors allow the inside flap to open for mail, newspapers etc but stop hands getting inside your house. Available in Gold, Silver and Chrome.

Be safe while you are in

Door Chains are ideal security devices to help you whilst you are at home. But not all chains are the same... Cheap chains have weak links or thin metal which can be broken easily. Our chains are Trade specified and withstand a minimum 200nm of breaking force. Both chain types are available in Brass and Chrome finish.

For even greater security

Door restrictors do not rely on chains for their strength. They are produced from solid metal which offers the ultimate in door step restriction security. These type of security devices are the device of choice in the likes of high class hotels throughout the world as they offer total peace of mind. Door restrictors are available in Brass and Chrome finish.
